DAY 1 • 2

Serian's Serengeti is a mobile camp, and our movement is governed by the wildebeest migration. From mid-June to mid-November, we – along with 1.6 million gnus – are situated in the far north of the Serengeti plains. The beauty of Northern Serengeti is it is the heart of the crossings, and in this respect, we are all about location. Our camp is set a mere 2 kilometres from the Mara River, within minutes of the major crossing points.

DAY 3 • 4 • 5 • 6

On foot you will feel the opening of your senses, sharpening in response to the immediacy of the wilderness: vision, sound, smell all respond to the challenge of perceiving and reading the primordial signals of the bush. Alex, in company of traditionally attired and armed Hadzabe guides, will teach you to see the landscape through their eyes, and immeasurably enhance the richness of the way you experience it. Drink in the active participation of engaging with your surrounds, and cultivate a fuller appreciation of the myriad intricacies that make up the magic of the bush. By night, take adventure back to its roots with fireside meals and bedrolls under the stars, and relish the stripped-back simplicity that is the beauty of fly-camping.

Return to the relative lap of luxury of the main camp, and kick back with a well-earned G&T. Round off your experience with a game drive or two perhaps to see some cheetah or wild dog, or simply relax and let it all sink in.

DAY 9

Take a slow cruise to the airstrip and see some last glimpses of wildlife as you wave goodbye from the plane.

“What a happy country – even the elephants are smiling. The openness and the open atmosphere of the camp makes this place unforgettable”

A woman with long, wavy hair, wearing a white button-down shirt and light-colored shorts, is sitting on a large, textured rock. She is barefoot and is writing in a notebook with a pen. A white bag is on the rock to her left. The background features a large, gnarled tree with sparse foliage and a sky with soft, wispy clouds. The overall scene is peaceful and suggests a moment of reflection in nature.
